[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 15.—[Special.]—Last night witnessed the grand rushes of Republican statesmen for the Secretary of State's office. The night force of delegates were in one of the South Second rooms, a special force had been detailed, and the best accommodations of the office. The rooms contained cots and the delegates themselves, but many outsiders who were not delegates, but who were bound to secure their names first, "caught on" to the Tribune and Chicago Republican & Journal offices. The force temporarily took a back seat, notwithstanding the different political aspirations of the gentlemen. Logan and anti-Logan men, anti-Cullom men, and the content of the contest was generally forgotten in the excitement of getting there. There was only one delegate who was not for Logan, and he was for Cullom. Those who had delegates were very sure that they would get there, and to get on the train should they have come, but to get on the train should they have come, but to get on the train should they have come, but Lucien Sarcey, a French dramatic author, died yesterday, aged 44.

It is reported that the health of Emperor William of Germany is fully restored.

Bismarck, the Crown Prince of Austria, and his wife have started for a tour through Turkey.

The Right Hon. Sir Richard Cross, Baronet, Viscount Cross of Preston, Lancashire, and Baron Cross of Broughton, Lancashire, England, died yesterday. He was born Aug. 30, 1823.

Chauncey C. Penn, United States Vice-Consul at Sagua La Grande, has temporarily taken charge of the Consul-Generalship at Havana.

In another page will be found a full and complete list of prizes issued to Northwestern livestock during the week ending yesterday.

Pauly L. Ernst, a traveling salesman for a local English Government bond, committed suicide at Cadillac, Mich., yesterday. He took a dose of morphine.

The Canadian Roman Catholic Bishops have joined in a petition to the British Government to use its influence to protect the property of the Propaganda in Italy.

An attempt was recently made to assassinate President Barrios, of the Guatemalan Republic. No harm was done. Señor Barrios is officially reported to be perfectly well.

Gen. Pendleton, brother-in-law of President Garfield, goes to Paris to represent the Boston Government there. He is also to treat with the widowhood of Maximilian's foreign guard.

Gen. Sherman's report of the capture of Hong Kee leaves it to be inferred that the military of the French was what achieved the victory on the frontier. He complimented the French soldiers and sailors on their bravery.

Gen. Winslow Wilson was awarded $10,000 in a suit in Judge Gaynor' court yesterday for slander, the defendant being Daniel Crowley, who accused the General of undue familiarity with Mrs. Crowley. Crowley, it is believed, cannot pay the money.

All grave depositors from Lisle to places outside that island are subjected to the annual assessment. As a consequence Lisle can be learned of the progress of the Silver Queen. The very prettiest in the island is also subjected to most critical tests.

Diarrhea of white souls continue to show a decided increase over all previous periods, having the last week 2,000 packages were sent. The income of the exports for the first three months of this year over the exports for the corresponding period of last year is 47,000 packages.

At Wapakoneta, the Arthur men carried the primary Republican State Convention at Montgomery yesterday. All the Grant delegates but the two from the Fifth, and the Sherman delegate will vote for Arthur in the Chicago Convention, at least on the early ballots.

The delegates to the United State Republican Convention are gathered at Paris. There is an active movement on foot on the part of the various candidates for their favors. The chairmanship of yesterday behind that Maj. Cassatt, United States Attorney of the Southern District Illinois, will be temporary Chairman, and Don Piatt, of Chicago, permanent Secretary. The temporary organization will be made permanent, probably. It goes without saying that the delegates-at-large will be for Logan. Senator Colfax is probably a favorite queen in favor of his colleague, who will certainly be followed to the convention by a large majority. It is claimed that a delegate has been elected from Secretary Lincoln saying that, as a member of the Cabinet, he cannot be a candidate against President Arthur, and, as an Illinois man, he cannot be a candidate against Logan.

Yesterday was the thirteenth anniversary of the assassination of Abraham Lincoln. Memorial services were held under the direction of the Lincoln Guard of Honor at the National cemetery in the vicinity. Addresses were delivered by Archbishop Feehan and Judge Bunn.

Philip Tucker, once a respectable and reputable man, was arrested in this city yesterday on the charge of forgery in order to obtain railroad passes which he afterwards disposed of. Tucker was at one time a bookkeeper in the department of John A. McClernand. He spent some time in Joliet Prison for embezzlement from that firm.

A cyclone swept over the Town of Shattuck, fifteen miles from Tarkio, Mo., Monday, demolishing several stores and residences and seriously injuring many of the inhabitants. A violent wind and rainstorm visited the country in the vicinity of Columbus, Ga., yesterday. The cabin in Lowndes county was blown away.

T. B. Cook, of this city, was made defendant with others yesterday in an injunction suit brought by Mrs. Ella Lloyd, of this Michigan woman, who borrowed $300 from Annie E. Tolbert through Cook at the rate of 5 per cent per month. An attempt had been made by the creditors to sell the borrower's furniture, valued by her at $6,000.

A bill was filed in the Superior Court of Cook County calling for an accounting by the executors of the will of Charles Dutton, who died at Salt Lake, Utah, in January, 1878, leaving property valued at $200,000. It is claimed by numerous relatives that the property was not disposed of in accordance with the laws of Utah. The case is a complicated one and the complainants are many.

Executions against property issued from numerous tribunals in the County Court against the government for the collection of the Labor-Union dues. The principal obligations are that the property is assessed more than its share and will not be benefited by the extension; that the improvement ordinance was not passed by the proper authorities, and was never approved by the City Council.

The Chicago produce markets were very much unsettled yesterday. Provisions were dull and weak, closing 30¢ cents lower on pork and 15¢ cents lower on other product than Monday evening. Lards was stronger, with rather large trading. Wheat closed 1¢@2 cent higher, corn ¼ cent higher, and oats ¼ cent higher. The visible supply of wheat is reported to have decreased 1,000,000 bushels last week.

Three Lutheran Congresses and Roman Catholics have occurred at Carbondale, Nicodemus, growing out of the attack on some Protestants returning from church Sunday night by the Roman Catholics. Several persons on both sides have been severely injured. One man has been killed. Several arrests have been made. A British gunboat has arrived at the scene of the disturbance.

Mr. Parnell was presented with the freedom of the City of Dungannon yesterday. In said that in the prosperity of the town he saw some of the results of the Land Congress agitation, expressed himself satisfied with the progress of the nationalistic idea in Ireland, and hoped that the extension of the franchise to that country would culminate in the return of a sufficiently large number of patriotic members of Parliament to vindicate Ireland's right to self-government.

The vote to which the constitution of the Northern hill was revised yesterday was made up of 130 Democrats and five Republicans. The opposing vote consisted of ninety-nine Republicans and forty-eight Democrats and one Independent. Fourth, of Chicago. The Democratic opposition vote consisted of one vote each from Alabama, Connecticut, Indiana, Louisiana, Maryland, four from California, three from New Jersey, five from Ohio, ten from Pennsylvania, and nine from New York.

Western Mormons sold in U. S. Bullion & Co. yesterday 1,000,000 bushels of wheat to May delivery at 90¢ cents per bushel. This is believed to be the largest single transaction that ever occurred on the Chicago Board of Trade. It is not covered for an operator there to receive an order to buy or sell a million bushels of grain, but such orders are the speculative grade, in that they stand alone. Such an order hitherto has always been filled by nothing more than one purchase or sale.

At the meeting of the Chicago Presbytery yesterday gratifying evidence was borne to the effect of high hopes in furthering the cause of temperance. The pastor wrote that $1,000 income to his town reduced the number of saloons from 17 to thirty-three, and that the bars were reduced. Another town that high license reduced the saloons from sixteen to five. It was generally conceded that high license would result in great good to Chicago. The Citizens' League was represented. A report embodying these and other facts and opinions was unanimously adopted.

A secretary of the Executive Committee of the Irish National League of America, of which Dickson members, lately a prisoner, and Mr. Patrick Egan, ex-Treasurer of the Irish Land League, admitted, was held in the Police Court yesterday. It was decided to call the examination of the latter to meet at Boston, Mass., the second Wednesday in August, at which other Irish agents, Parnell, who is reported to attend, should come. A resolution indorsing Mr. Parnell's advice to the Irish farmers to refuse to pay the police tax imposed under the Crimes act was passed.

They of the most notable men of Chicago passed away yesterday—Gen. Charles G. Hammond, the President of the Home of the Friendless, and Samuel J. Walker, about ten years ago the most extensive and widest operator in his city. Gen. Hammond was in his 80th year, having been born in Bolton, Conn., in June, 1804. His death occurred in the quiet room of Manager Field & Co., which he visited with a number of his friends. His name has been intimately associated with nearly every charitable society in Chicago, and with many of Chicago's most important enterprises. He came to this city in 1855, and has since that period of public-trust worthily and substantially. An accepted biographical sketch of the deceased gentleman will be found in our obituary columns. Mr. S. J. Walker was a native of Kentucky, and was in his 50th year. His death resulted from illness brought on by a recent contest in Cincinnati for stock options by using drastic from a tonic. In 1875 he owned 1,000 shares in the city limits of Chicago. The panic of 1873 completely bankrupted him, and in 1875 he was obliged to go into bankruptcy. His name will ever be associated with the improvement of railroad systems, and of the South of the West Side streets.

"Bismarck" was present at the banquet of the Chicago Journalist Society last night by the simple expedient of not having anybody to speak whose opinions on any subject were known to be in opposition with those of the managers of the club. Even the Hon. J. Sterling Morton was permitted to give his testimony in favor of the Democratic tariff, even Carter Harrison was glad to be allowed to set his oar with moderation and to almost. The Hon. George Washington stood stupefied on behalf of civil-service reform, but Milton Mahoney, of Cleveland, who got Pendleton and reform under on full of ground and wisdom, did not honor the club with a view of sugar. Gen. Black, of Kansas, pleaded the Democratic party to continued possibly to all emergency legislation, but the two guesses (Democrats of the Southern States and nine possibilities secretes in Illinois) were large majorities in Kansas and other "good times" were experienced by their absence. Sterling Morton, the eighth champion of tariff reform, stood before the company as one whose advice had been rejected by the Democratic National Convention, and who in consequence had resigned his membership of that body. Senator Pendleton, as one whose words of advice the Democratic Convention had accepted, was congratulated on the success of his policy in the Democratic Convention, and with it the consequent defeat of Mr. Morton. Gen. Logan did not know the club was a temperance society, and drank as a matter of course. Gen. Senator Pendleton, as one whose words of advice the Democratic Convention had accepted, was congratulated on the success of his policy in the Democratic Convention, and with it the consequent defeat of Mr. Morton. Gen. Logan did not know the club was a temperance society, and drank as a matter of course.

Another feature of the banquet which must attract attention was the large number of letters of apology sent by Democrats of National reputation. Either they did not know the disposition of having inflicted on them one of the infamous and humorous speeches of the Hon. Joe Medill, of Chicago, or they did not wish to identify themselves with the principles of the Democratic party. The latter was probably the most probable reason for their absence.

It will soon strange to the "rolling stones," who were not allowed vote in both, and in the "ayes" in the party, that the Legends, which is supposed to succeed the present Boston Democratic should gentlemen "Democrat" at the price of the speech, in favor of which the party has passed so many supposed resolutions, and that the representatives of the protectionist element (constituting fully 60 per cent of the party), as shown by the vote on Morrison's bill in the House of Representatives yesterday, should be ignored or subsidized. The Democratic managers may believe that they represent the Democratic party, but their assertions, their organization of those who differ from them, and their manufacture of an apparent agreement from distant States might have as many reasons lead to overthrow as large majority that they have the confidence that they are not believed by the voting masses of their own political organization.

NATIONAL INTEGRITY.

The English Constitution is the accumulated result of traditions, precedents, and general principles, and it is subject to the influences which the people of any epoch may impress upon it. It is the "unwritten law" which receives loyalty and the ability claims from constitutionists more popular regard. The American Constitution is a written instrument which was originally agreed upon as a precise definition of the powers delegated to the General Government by the States which then lived themselves to a National Union. The many amendments of our Constitution since made, and the construction of the Democratic party ever since the War of the Rebellion has been by the enforcement of that theory. Nevertheless, the American Constitution, in spite of its inelastic character, has undergone so many changes that it may be regarded as a progressive instrument, and certainly the powers of the National Government have been enlarged far beyond the scope of the original design. A writer in the May number of the Atlantic Monthly (Mr. Edward Channing) holds up the recent decision of the Supreme Court in the Legal-tender cases as an illustration of the successful attempt of the Judiciary to modify Executive with the principles of the Constitution. The latter was probably the most profound lesson for their framers.

It will soon strange to the "rolling stones," who were not allowed vote in both, and in the "ayes" in the party, that the Legends, which is supposed to succeed the present Boston Democratic should gentlemen "Democrat" at the price of the speech, in favor of which the party has passed so many supposed resolutions, and that the representatives of the protectionist element (constituting fully 60 per cent of the party), as shown by the vote on Morrison's bill in the House of Representatives yesterday, should be ignored or subsidized. The Democratic managers may believe that they represent the Democratic party, but their assertions, their organization of those who differ from them, and their manufacture of an apparent agreement from distant States might have as many reasons lead to overthrow as large majority that they have the confidence that they are not believed by the voting masses of their own political organization.

OUR WHEAT AT THE END.

Yesterday the visible stock went out of Chicago a month ago, when the 2nd arrived and was made to August some, entered to Liverpool. A more dispatch brings the news that it sold, and not sold well, but sold at the top of the market. This is interesting for several reasons. It proves notwithstanding the alleged unwillingness of English users to use in the American fly, that there is still a market in England for American wheat. It is still more interesting for the evidence of the effect of the quality on the price. It is found to be so good by the English buyer that he is willing to pay the best price for it, more than he will give for the unadvanced Indian wheat or that which comes imperfectly matured from Russia.

But we came from here the English had a choice to use wheat, Russian-Chicago wheat. They certainly have been fooled by the graduate of the University and chemistry of the New York wheat-grain. The wheatlike stuff prepared by compounding our good wheat in the Brooklyn milling-house with the mottled, blighted, and flattened wheat bought at a low price by the adulterators has been lying around in the English warehouses, leaving a cloud on all American wheat and depressing the quotations for our exports. These frauds have been exposed time and time again, but the kind of people who in such things care nothing for character or reputation of their products so long as they are left free to the law to continue their degradatory frauds. But the feeling in grain has had one fortunate result at last. It has given the English buyer a chance to see some wheat worthy of a high Chicago grade.

Our wheat is necessarily fine this year, and the kind Providence which has permitted this crop to climb the rightmost of the New York, Toledo, and Dakota wheats has, we hope, opened a market for a large quantity of it. The enormous increase in the shipments from by the trunk lines the last two months and the enormous volumes of the exports from the seaboard in the same period, at lower as have ever been made in the same time, are indications that with all that has been said about Indian and Australian wheat Europe is not going to discontinue using American wheat entirely. In one of the reports of Consul-General Badeau, at Calcutta, it is stated that the cost of production of Indian wheat is 80 cents a bushel, and that if the rice record and a price based on that figure he will not sell, but will store the crops in the godowns (as which play the part of elevators in that civilization), and wait for a better bid. The competition of the American farmer, it will be seen, is not a man who is going to sell at any price.

That the American wheatgrower is holding back his wheat at these prices is abundantly shown by the very small receipts at the primary markets like Chicago, St. Louis, and other points. The farmer has the opportunity of never bringing forward the wheat to fill speculative sales made by the Board of Trade farmers at low prices. The farmer holds on his wheat at good enough to keep it for price to get what he thinks it should be. And the farmer may never perhaps to a good a condition to hold his wheat as now, for the sales of a few years ago are gone off, and he is very apt to think that he cannot make a better harvest than by getting the difference between the present low prices and those which he will expect to be made before the end of the year.

With Chicago wheat selling in Liverpool, and selling at the top of the market, with no crops very light from the Atlantic, and an early beginning to make good the exports and the Seaside consumption, with none of the vast Indian surplus left to be sold, and with prices nearly at once a basket lower than they ever had Dumpton, the outlook for a harvest wheat in the foreign markets is not entirely without hope.

THE FRENCH ENGLISH EXPEDITION.

The three powers which the Government has decided to send out to search for Lieut. Lissel and party will soon be on their way to the Pacific ports. The French Government also will have a vessel in the Pacific Ocean before this comment, and to the extent of its ability has cooperation will also engage in the search. Meanwhile the House has agreed to the Senate bill appropriating $50,000 as a reward for private rescue of the officers of naval service who may discover and relieve the party, or that a large fund of whatever and amount will be on the Lieutenant also. As they are not transported by subscription, and as the reward is a generous one, it is a matter of course that they will enter upon the search with great enthusiasm, and it is also more than probable that the fate of the party will be ultimately ascertained by the private parties.

Meanwhile it is understood that the official search will be conducted entirely upon the expeditious route by the experienced Pacific Ocean explorer, Sir George Nares, Capt. Markham, and Maj. Pelham, who are described with the entire region around Discovery Bay and any route which Lieut. Greely might have attempted to retreat. These officers, whose forced may submit to our co-Government, have established their office upon the supposition that the Government would send out some vessel, the other being the Alert, presented by the English Government, but as it has recommended itself will be done now sole, which will add to the chances of success. They suggest that the two vessels should have their arrival at Upernavik about the first week in July, and if the villages had then reached the Danish settlements from Greely they should then go northward to company. If they find the forces at the entrance to Smith Sound their further plans are to be governed by circumstances. The vessels will probably leave Upernavik, Greely, and it will be determined upon after the arrival of the English officers with the head of quarter himself.

A NEW BANKRUPT LAW.

The people have been accustomed to look to the popular branch of Congress for prompt and efficient in the work of legislation, but since the House of Representatives passed under the control of the Democratic the House has taken the lead. The new order of things is well illustrated by the condition of the Bankruptcy bill in the Senate. That body has had the presence of the most prominent of the country named from the House, which is supposed to be nearer to the people, and the signs of the Democrats point to an early agreement upon some practical measure. There is no doubt that the business interests demand a uniform bankruptcy law, and perhaps the prevailing condition of prices and enterprise will make such a law more essential to the welfare of the country within the next year or two than at any other time, with the exception of the general legislation which succeeded the panic of 1873. The competition and the expansion of various State provisions in case of insolvency have been growing more and more apparent and evident during the past year. Perhaps the closest and readiest of the difficulties of the Chicago method of selling out to a "receiver" encounter a business country may be in a jail-bird and fleeing during work of the creditors to evidence the best manner or enough any names which might be offered in Congress. If the general bankruptcy and insolvency legislation should embrace a term of years the result would be almost to destroy the credit system and thereby to put a blight upon business enterprise and commercial probity to this country. There is a universal conviction of that class of persons who derive upon confidence games for other ends of subsistence which, while guaranteeing to all who are legitimately entitled a return from further obligation after surrendering their assets, shall therefore secure a fair distribution of the bankrupt's estate. Such an provision can only be obtained from a Federal law which shall establish the same rules of enforcement for all sections of the country and place the non-resident and the resident creditor upon the same footing. The record of the former Bankruptcy Act is the best guide for avoiding the errors and abuses which are likely to follow upon the system. It was constructed because the necessary relending legislation were necessitated by the acts of the Democratic party, but a permanent law should be constructed upon broader principles

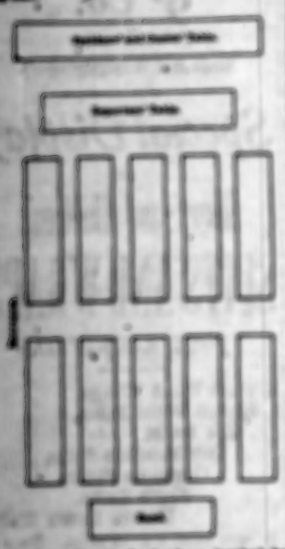
THE BANQUET.

The third annual banquet of the Iroquois Club took place last evening at the Palmer House, and was fully equal to its predecessors as a shining point of party enthusiasm. The large dining-hall was elegantly decorated for the occasion with National flags, and on the wall behind the Chairman was placed a beautiful representation of the Temple of the Iroquois, with a number of electric lights, with a motto in white letters underneath it, and on one of the projecting ends the word "Iroquois" worked out in purple letters. The tables were arranged in the form of a letter T, the cross-piece being at the north end of the hall. Here sat the Chairman, Hon. Carter H. Harrison, the Secretary, Mr. Phelps, the Treasurer of the club, and the guests of honor. Along the sides of the hall, and at the other tables, were seated the members of the club and their friends, numbering about 300 persons. The following is a diagram of the banquet hall:



The following table shows the seating of the guests at the principal table:

Carter H. Harrison,	J. C. Runyon,
J. C. Bundy,	Edgar Tobin,

The following is a diagram of the banquet hall:

The dinner having been finished, the Hon. Carter Harrison, the President of the club, arose and said:

GENTLEMEN OF THE IROQUOIS CLUB: I am glad to see so many of you here to-night, and I am glad to see so many of our friends from abroad. I am glad to see that the Democracy of Chicago is not dead, but that it is alive and kicking. [Laughter.]
